DEPARTMENT OF ARCHIVES AND HISTORY TO HOST SCREENING OF SEASON
PREMIERE OF ALABAMA PUBLIC TELEVISION'S JOURNEY PROUD SERIES
ON OCTOBER 23

On Thursday, October 23, 2014 at 5:30 pm, the Alabama Department of Archives and History (ADAH) in Montgomery will host a free screening of the new season 2 premiere of Alabama Public Television (APT)'s Journey Proud series in its Joseph M. Farley Alabama Power Auditorium. The new season will debut on APT on October 26. Journey Proud host Joey Brackner and the show's producer, Chris Holmes, will be on hand to provide opening remarks and lead a Q&A session following the program.

Journey Proud is a documentary series highlighting the people, customs, and traditions of Alabama. Hosted by Joey Brackner, Director of the Alabama Center for Traditional Culture, Journey Proud canvases the state documenting Alabama's diverse cultural heritage. Season two begins with two programs focusing on music in Alabama. Brackner guides the way on treks to Boaz and Frankville, Alabama, exploring the rich traditions of fiddle music and gospel music in the state. Learn more about the new season by visiting <http://www.aptv.org/Press/detail.asp?PressID=143>.

This event is in conjunction with the ADAH's October-long series of special exhibits and events to celebrate American Archives Month. This is a national initiative sponsored by the Society of American Archivists to build public awareness about the important service that archives and archivists provide to communities by collecting, preserving, and sharing records that tell the stories of the past. Light refreshment will be provided. The ADAH is located across the street from the State Capitol at 624 Washington Avenue. For more information and for a complete schedule of ADAH Archives Month activities, visit www.archives.alabama.gov
